member of his family, and before I left Acapulco, I heard that Don Miguel had given him for a wife his only daughter. Inex, a beautiful girl, who could have had her choice of the proudest young bloods in this region."

It may be i nagined with what interest Mr. Burton listened to the story thus unconsciously revealed by the chatty Mexican. He at once, as by prescience, saw his man in this fortunate Dr. Seltzer, who had registered his name Mr., not Dr., on the passenger-list, and which name was among those whom the detective had selected as suspicious.

Edging gradually into the conversation, Mr. Burton, with his tact and experience, was not long in drawing from the group with the first of the series of hills of which mention has been made.

The doctor, who should have acted as guide, had, somehow, "Which direction shall I take?" asked Mr. Burton pressing after thim, "but be cautious of your footing. A listep may hurl you upon the rocks below. In three minutes we shall be in a safe and teautiful region, with our feet, the first of the series of hills of which mention has been made.

master of the place was at home, and was soon shown into his presence, in the cool, tilefloored sitting room, in which he was lounging, waiting for the supper-hour.

Mr. Burton's powers of pleasing were too great, and his refinement too real, for him to fail in making the impression he desired upon the gentleman into whose house he had intraded himself.

The two had conversed nearly an hour when Don Miguel said;

"It is now our supper-hour. Allow a servant to show you to your apartment, where we will give you time to at least bathe your face and hands after your weary ride. I was so entertained by the news you bring me from the States that I have neglected your confort. Dr. Seltzer went up on the mountain, to-day, to look after our mining interests a little, but I expect his return every moment. He will be charmed to meet a countryman."

The senses of the guest were all keenly on the alert; but it was high and the color of the contrary, Mr. Burton, cam and self-possessed, despite an in-stant's astonishment, pressed his adversacy backward along the narrow path, until they were both on safe ground, until they were both on safe ground, in the middle of a little grassy plateau, which they had lately traversed, where he middle of a little grassy plateau, which they had lately traversed. Day was breaking when Mr. Burton finished his narrative.

"I must go now, and awaken my little girl," he said, rising.

"But you have not read me the written confession of that Thornley."

"Richard, you must forgive me if I do not see fit to allow you to read it at present. You shall soon be at rest about the affair. I only pray, now, for a speedy voyage, and that Leesy Sullvan may be alive when we reach New York."

In the mean time, the sun rose upon the bustle of disembarking from the steamer to the cars.

the bustle of disembarking from the steamer to the cars.

We took a carriage and drove to Mr. Burton's; he was expected by the house-keeper, so that we found the house prepared for our reception. A fine dinner was served at the usual hour—but I could not eat. Appetite and sleep fled before my absorbing anticipations.

I arose from my sleepless bed to face this, the most memorable day of my life. Whether I ate or drank, I know not; but I noticed that Mr. Burton's countenance wore a peculiar, illuminated look, as if his soul was inwardly rejoicing over a victory gained. However, there was still pre-occupation in it, and some perplexity. Immediately after breakfast, he proposed to go out, saying:

well as those of Europe, looked upon it with dread as foreshadowing the ruin of the nation, but we think that the Chief Justice has done himself honor by the impartial and dignifed manner in which he has deported himself, and that the Senate, though politically strongly opposed to the President has obtained credit by its majority ruling against extreme partisan measures.

The lawyers on both sides have shown marked ability and courtesy to each other, and the estimeness and degliberation, shows that however high party spirit may rise, the American people hold themselves amenable to a sense of honor, a principle of justice and to the enlightened politically strongly of the react body of the nation demand fair play, for there can be no doubt that such a sentiment prevails, and has made itself felt in this trial.

The whole people have in reality sat in this Court of Impeaelment, and the Jury or Judges, the Chief Justice, the Managers, the President's Counsel and the little of the previous of the prevention of the previous of Immediately after breakfast, he proposed to go out, saying:

"Richard, remain here a couple of hours with Lenore, until f find out whether Miss Sullivan is dead or alive. I should not have gone to bed last night without knowing, had I not been troubled with a severe headache. This is now the first step in the day's duties. As soon as possible I will report progress;" and he went out.

"Leesy Sullivan is alive, but very feeble.

"We are to go up to Blankville by the evening train," he continued. "Leesy will accompany us. Until that time, there is nothing to do."

I was forced to that dreariest of all was forced to that dreariest of all. this Court of Impeachment, and the Jury Ill accompany us. Until that time, there agers, the President's Counsel and the agers, the President's Counsel and the Witnesses, have appeared before them things—to wait. The hours did finally pass, and Mr. Burton set out first with a carriage, to convey Miss Sullivan to the household in the land through the newshousehold in the land through the news-carriage, to convey Miss Sullivan to the depot.

Mr. Burton had almost to carry her into the ear, where he placed her on a seat, with his overcoat for a pillow. We took our seats opposite to her, and as those large, unfathomable eyes met mine, still blazing with their old luster, hencath the pellid brow, I can not describe the sensations which rushed over me.

A fussy little woman passed out before us, lugging a large band-box; she handed it to the town express, telling the driver to be very careful of it, and take it round at once to Esquire Argyl's.

"I suppose it contains the wedding bonnet," he said, with a lugh.

"That it does, and the dress, too, all of my own selection," said the little woman, with an air of importance. "Just you carry it in your hand, sir, and don't you allow nothing to come near it."

When I heard these words, a hot flush.

SOUTH READING.—The following officers were elected Monday. Town Clerk—B. F. Packard; Selectmen—Jas. Oliver, Jas. F. Mansfield, Richard Britton; Assessors—James Oliver, Samul Gardner, Alexander Turnbull; Overseers of Poor—James Oliver, S. F. Littlefield, Lewis Fairbanks; School Committee—James W. Willmarth, T. A. Emerson; Town Treasurer—James F. Emerson.
The town voted the following appropriations:—Town debt, $8000; Schools, $6500; Poor, $3000; Highways, $2500; Miscellaneous, 5000; Fire department, $1000; Town library, 500; Fourth of July celebration, $1000.

The town voted to celebrate its adoption of the name of Wakefield on the evening of the 4th of July; and a committee was chosen and authorized to make suitable arrangements for said celebration.

During eleven Presidential campaigns there have been caudidates in whose names a capital "C" occurred, none of whom were elected, namely: Charles C. Pinckney, twice a candidate; George Clinton; De Witt Clinton; William H. Crawford; Henry Clay, three times a candidate; Lewis Cass; John C. Freuont; George B. McClellan. We have had seventeen Presidents and only three of them had a middle name. The names of nine of them end with the letter "n".

I heard of the murder—I believed I had discovered the perpetrator, I could not allow the matter to sink into silence.

Your suspicions fell upon one who had been an honored and favored member of your family—you feared, although you were not certain, that Richard Redfield committed the deed.

"I believe now, Mr. Argyll, that you were not far wrong in your conjectures. I have discovered the word some the storm from human observation. The next morning found him in New York, dress, complexion and hair changed, with ed by its friends! So I remained quiet and listened.

"When a crime like this is committed," proceeded the detective, quite calm in the midst of our excitement, "we usually look for the motive. Next to avarice come the passions of revenge and jealousy in frequency. We know that money had nothing to do with Henry Moreland's death—revenge and jealousy had. There lived in Blankville, three or four years ago, a young fellow, a druggist, by the name of George Thorley—you remember him, Mr. Argyll?"

Mr. Argyll nodded his head.

"He was an adventurer, self-instructed in medicine, rather talented, and wholly without principle. Shortly."

So I remained quiet in to the light, he said, in words which give her like fire:

"It was your nephew—James Argyll."

For a moment you might have heard a leaf drop on the carpet; no one spoke or stirred. Then Eleanor arose from her clark, and lifting up her hand, looked with awful eyes at the cowering murderer. Her look blasted him He had been withing under Mr. Burton's grasp; but now, as if in answer to her gaze, he said; on the support of the motive. the cars, for fear of being suspected, he went down along the docks, took possession of a small-boat which lay moored down the river, completely protected by the storm from human observation. The next morning found him in New York, of dress, complexion and hair changed, with nothing about him to excite the least suspected which was just becoming known. However, he wrote a letter directed to John Owen, Peckskill, in which he stated in obscure terms, that the instrument with which the murder was committed would be found secreted in a certain oak tree on these premises, and that it had better be taken care of. I have the letter and the highly and the first was, after finding her handkerchief in the garden, after the flight, and all the garden, after the flight, and all the first the flight, and all the first the flight, and all the first was to conceal my real suspicious; the next was, after finding her handkerchief in the garden, after the flight, and all the first was to conceal my real suspicious; the next was, after finding her handkerchief in the garden, after the flight, and all the first was to conceal my real suspicious; the next was, after finding her handkerchief in the garden, after the flight, and all the flight, and all the flight, and all the flight. land?" asked Mr. Burton in the pause which followed.

It had been taken for granted who the person was, and as he asked the question the eyes of all turned to me—of all except James, who suddenly sprung with a bound against the door opening into the parlor, which was not locked. But another was too quick for him; the powerful hand of the detective was on his shoulder, and as he turned the attempted fugitive full to the light, he said, in words which fell like fire: suspicions of Mr. Redfield; for the same reason which had kept me silent so long—that is, that I should eventually unde-ceive you—I did not defend him, as I otherwise should. MAKE FRIENDS.

"I will give you an unfailing key to success," said an experienced man to a young friend. "Make one new friend every day, and retain all you make." Three hundred and sixty-five friends a year would certainly be an important auxiliary to the "productive resources" of an ambitions young man making his way in the world. But then comes the question: How are these friends to be made? It should be easy enough to retain a friend once earned, but how can this very excellent prescription of making friends be carried out? There are many ways in which progress may be had in this direction, even if the task should not be literally accomplished. Let us look at the matter in a rational way. To commence with, CIVILITY is an excellent bait with which to catch friends; and civility is cheap. Nothing is easier than to keep a fresh supply "constantly on hand." There are bogus articles sometimes attempted to be palmed off for the real thing, but they are all so base that they are easily detected. Obsequiousness is one; flattery another; mock-modesty a third; officiousness a fourth, and so on. These may have the "guinea stamp," but their spuriousness is easily detected. True civility needs no false lights to show its points. It is the embodiment of Truth—the mere opening out of the inner self. The arts and artifices of a

A PRISON INCIDENT.

I was sitting with an old friend, the governor of a county jail, and we had been talking over his manner of living—one to which he seemed perfectly reconciled.

We will be said from a neighboring house, and given notice to the gatekeeper.

"It was now plain enough that the prisoner had reached the top of the high wall, and then, probably from its being daylight, been afraid to descend; so he had climbed from thence by means of a made away with himself.

"The summons came at last, but in a different form; for one morning I was roused at five o'clock to be told that the bird had beaten down the wires and had escaped.

"Why, how did he manage it?" I exclaimed apartity.

"The doctor was standing over Ridding when I went into his cell, and then an obsess will avail me nought. My conserved the scheme, but I shall not embar I have too much money already."

It urned away from the window to run down; but not quickly enough 40 avoid her and the scheme, but I shall not embar I have too much money already. "It was asked to explain, at marked; "Yes; I would not cross treet to gain thousands. I shot was asked to explain, at marked; "Yes; I would not cross treet to gain thousands. been talking over his manner of living—one to which he seemed perfectly reconciled.

"Well," he said, "yes, it is a dull life, perhaps; not that I feel it, for, according to my way of thinking, it is not the occupation, but the man's heart that makes him dull. Depend upon it, hands and a thoughtful mind were not given us for nothing, and the more think the nearer I come to the conclusion that the busy life is the happy one after all. Now here am I, with plenty to take up my time in my duties, plenty of studies of character within reach, shut up all ready for me in the different cells.

"Gloomy place this, you'll say, barred, as own place, and in itself able to make a heaven of its abode. I'm contented enough, and too busy generally to find fault.

"Yes, you may depend upon it your busy man is the happiest, for I've seen it again and again. The greatest punishment you can inflitt upon u man is to shuthim up with nothing to do, nothing to employ his time with, nothing to hinder the constant drag, drag of his thoughts pulling him towards the past.

"Not always sorrow and contrition, but trecollections of drinking-bouts and successful robberies and their profits, debancheries, and then longings for liberty once more. E. MARCHAN'I,
EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

THE UNIVERSAL AND PR

Mr. Raymond, of the Times, for the daily finished this season. The distance from Omala to Sacremento is 1721 miles, and it is now believed that at least 1200 miles of the whole line will be finished before 1869. This will leave only between 500 and 600 miles to be completed hereafter, and it would not be surprising if the grant calebration of the penited and commendation of the completion of the Pacific Railiroad would take place a twelve month carlier than the companies now promise. Genius, Plack, and Money will then have accomplished one of the greatest and most useful works in the world. It was indispensable to the political as well as physical welfare of the country. I will bind the great extremes of the nation together, stop our Indian wars, develop our mineral resources, and add greatly to the wealth and prosperity of the mation.

It can hardly be doubted that this—the only railroad between the Attantic and Pacific States—"changes in the growth of the graces and add greatly to the wealth and prosperity of two oceans must flow over it, and the merely local business which springs up a long the line, as it is opened, and with the adjacent mines, not only between the Attante and Pacific States—who oceans must flow over it, and the merely local business which springs up a long the line, as it is opened, and with the adjacent mines, not only the control of the con the changes he beheld since his first visit—"changes moral; changes physical changes in the amount of land subdued and cultivated; changes in the rise of vast new cities; changes in the growth of older cities, almost out of recognition; changes in the growth of the graces and gayeties of life; changes in the press, without whose advancement no advancement can take place anywhere."

Mr. Dickens evidently needs rest—entire repose for a season. So his appearance indicates; and the wonder is that any man could stand for so long a period so much wearisome mental toil. He will return home with some of that kind of reward that will enable a man to rest, and cheered by the memory of the high appreciation in America of himself and ble Mr.

CATERPILLARS.—Every one who owns or has the care of an apple tree, if they have not already attended to it, should immediately destroy the eggs which were deposited on the branches by the catterpillar millers last July. A few warm days in early May will call forth the young "varmints," and it is much better and far less disagreeable to "nip them in the bud," or rather, to destroy them before they begin to devour the bursting buds, than it is to wait until they have begun their destructive work. BY ROBERT BUCHANAN.
The wind is shrill on the hills, and the culvor Wheels up and down with a windy gleam; The birch has unloosened her locks of silver, And shaken them down on the pools of stream;—

Yet here I linger in London city,
Thinking of meadows where I was bern.—
And over the tiles, with her haunting pity,
Glimmers the Moon with ber dripping horn.

O Moon, pale syren, with wild eyes drinking
The light of the sun as she sweepeth by,
I am looking straight in these eyes, and thinking
Of one who has loved you longer than I;
I am asking my heart if you pity, or cherish,
The souls that you witch with a harvest call—
If the dream must die when the dreamer perish—
If the like like the description. If it be idle to dream at all.

The waves of the city roll hither and thither,
The tumult deepens, the days go by;
The dead men vanish,—we know not whither,
The live men anguish,—we know not why;
The cry of the stricken is smothered never;
The shadow passes from street to street;
And—overhead—forever and ever,
Goes the still white gleam of thy constant feet.

The world rolls round an its western way;
The gleam of thy beautiful night up yonder
Is pale on the dreamer's cheek all day;
The old earth's voice is a sound of weeping,
All round her shores the waters cry;
There is no calm and there is no sleeping;
But thy still white presence goes nightly by.

Another sum ner, new hopes departed,
Yet here we are lingering, you and I;
I on the earth, with my hope proud-hearted,
You, through the silence of stars, in the sky!
You are there! I am here! and the reaping and sowing
Of the year of harvest is over and done,
And the heary snow-drift will soon be blowing
Under the which of the whirling sun.

The Biggest Thing Out.

WITH ONE CHICKEN

BY CELIA.

I dare say you have heard the sad story about the poor white turkey being dead, and leaving her four poor little ones motherless. It is an old story, oft repeated in the poultry-yard, but it has its moral, and I may as well tell it over toyou.

I can't say how she came to her death. but she was much respected, and the news flew fast through the barn-yard.

Even the peneock respectfully folded his tail As a suitable symbol of sorrow, and his plainer wife said, "Now the old bird is out she was fluch respected, and the news flew fast through the barn-yard.

"Even the peacock respectfully folded his tail As a suitable symbol of sorrow, and his plainer wite said, "Now the old bird is dead.

Who will tend her poor chicks on the morrow?"

At this the good old motherly duck remarked, as she dried her eyes with her wing—"I have eight ducklings of my own to cover, it's true, but I think I can manage to tuck two of the little orphans under my wings each night, Derhaps, neighbor, you might take in another," she added, bowing respectfully to the hen with one chicken.

But her ladyship instantly bristled her feathers, and began calling "cluck, cluck" at a terrible rate, as if she had full a baker's dozen to see to.

"I am sure," she remarked, with a pettish toss of her head, "my whole time is occupied in taking care of my own I am never idle a moment, as you can see, scratching for bugs and worms among those tiresome chips. Somebody must see to them who has fewer cares than I."

"Poor little dears," said the goose, "I will willingly take them out swimming with my nine the very next pleasant day."

The old Dorking, with her troublessome brood of ten half-grown chicks, signified her willingness to help the orphans all that she could.

"It will be a rough company to bring the tender things into though," she said. "They want a warm, quiet home.

The poor little things, they are all heads and wings,
And their bones through their feathers are sticking."

The lost for it is the peace of the most profitable in the world—but its way or local business is already several times the interest on its bonds; so that, if not another mile were built, they would be a secure investment.

And she looked hard at the hen with one chicken.

"No doubt it is and case," said the hen scratching away with all her might; "but oh' don't come to me with all my care, and labors, and troubles. Let them learn to scratch for themselves, then they'll learn to prize what they get." And so she called her one, and clucked away off to the farther, end of the garden, where she need hear no more of the motherless turkeys.

There was some nodding of heads and exclamations among the barn-yard-party; and the old duck sagely remarked that "Those who have the least care make the most fuss about it; and all decided that whenever they were in trouble they should know enough not to go for comfort to "the hen with one chicken."—The Little Pilyrim.

The members stated: "We formerly were wealthy; sustained a branch colored clurch of 500 members—supported a minister for their special instruction. We have should degrade any pot-house.

Mr. Washburn was charged by Representative Donelly with circulating false-hoods about him in the district he represented, in order to have him removed, and Mr. Washburn's brother elected in his place. Here is a nice Chesterfield paragraph—a sort of summing up:—

"If there be in our midst one low, sordid, vulgar soul; one barren of medicore intelligence; one heart callous to every kindly sentiment, and to every generous emotion; one tongue leprous with slandary; of foul beasts, giving forth deadly odors; if there be here character which while if there be here character which while blotched and spotted yet raves and rants and blackguards like a prostitute; if there be here one bodd, had, empty, bellowing demagogue, it is the gentleman from 11-linois."

That is what Pat would call a "fust rate character," a paper for one to carry in his pocket with pride and exhibit with the most sabundant self-satusfaction.

Both gentlemen are of the same politics, so that it is altogether a personal affair. What makes such language the more strange is, that the gentleman from Minnesota has been a very quiet man, seldom addressing the House.

The Speaker promptly called hint of order, but the House voted that he should be heard, Mr Washburne himself should be heard, Mr Washburne himself joining in the request. Mr. Washburne well-be will be modeled by cloudy, excepting a short replied with as violent abuse. Soborn from Francis B. Osborn, for adultery.

All our legislators are chosen too much for certain partisan traits, and nominated by citizens who play into each other's hands. But the business men, and the virtuous and intelligent, are to blame for suffering intrigue to carry the day in all our voting.

If Washburne and Donnelly are as bad as they represent each other, they never ought to have been sent to Congress, and if they are or are not deserving of such charges, the House ought not to tolerate such abuse.

He likewise offers the new invention for preserving the bodies of deceased persons by cold air alone, without the direct application of ice, which is so repugnant to the feelings. When preserved by the cold air process, a glass reveals at any moment the features of the departed, and the corpse will keep much longer than in the ordinary way.

The subscriber would take this opportunity to return his thanks for the liberal patronage he has hitherto received, and hopes with his new improvements to continue to give his outcomers the highest satisfaction.

There was once a child, and he strolled about a good deal, and thought of a number of things. He had a sister, who was a child too, and his constant companion. These two were used to wonder all day long. They wondered at the beauty of the flowers; they wondered at the hight and blueness of the sky; they wondered at the depth of the blue water; they wondered at the goodness and power of God, who made the lovely world.

They used to say to one another, sometimes, supposing all the children upon earth were to die, would the flowers, and the water, and the sky be sorry? For, said they, the buds are the children of the flowers, and the little playful streams that gambol down the hillsides are the children of the water; and the smallest bright specks playing at hide and seek in the sky all night, must be the children of the stars; and they would all be grieved to see their playmates, the children of men, no more.

There was one clear, shining star, that him, and he saw it through his silent tears.

Now these rays were so bright, and they seemed to make such a shining way from earth to heaven, that when the child went to his solitary bed, he dreamed that, lying where he was, he saw a train of people taken up that sparkling road by angels. And the star, opening showed him a great world of light, where many more such angels waited to receive them.

All these angels who were waiting turned their beaming eyes upon the people who were earried up into the star; and some came out from the long rows in which they stood, and fell upon the people's necks, and kissed them tenderly, and went away with them down avenues of light, and were so happy in their company, that lying in his bed he wept for joy.

But there were many angels, who didnessed

"I reckon you're a stranger," was the response.

"Look here, sonny."

"I ain't your sonny."

"No, not my sonny, but if you will jump down and come here I'll give you a dime."

The boy sprang as if alighting from a wasp's nest, and coming up to the stranger, exclaimed:

"Well, old hoss, what is it?"

"Use lest my way and don't know the stranger of the star, and said to the leader among them to the star, and said to the leader among them to the star, and said to the leader among those who had brought the people hitter.

"Is my brother come?"
And he said "no."

They whispered to one another-"He And he said, "I am. My age is falling from me like a garment, and I move loward the star as a child. And, O my ather! now I thank thee that it has so

THE HOWLAND WILL CASE.—The interest in this famous case has been revived by the reported death of the complainant, Mrs. Edward H. Green, (nee Miss Hetty Robinson) in Paris, from fever incidental to childbirth. A correspondent of the Springfield Union says: Her offspring is said to be living, and if he or she lives to be twenty-one an enormous fortnne will be in waiting. Mr. Edward Mott Robinson, the father of Hetty, who died in June, 1860, left a fortune of six million dollars, the whole of which, with the exception of thirty thousand dollars in legacies to servants and friends, went to her. Her aunt, Sylvia in the sky all hight, must be the children of the stars; and they would all be grieved to see their playmates, the children of men, no more.

There was one clear, shining star, that used to come out in the sky before the rest, near the church spire, above the graves. It was larger and more beautiful they thought, than all the others, and every night they watched for it, standing hand in hand at the window. Whoever saw it first cried out, "I see the star." And often they cried out both together, knowing so well when it would rise, and where. So they grew to be such friends with it, that, before lying down in their beds, they always looked out once again, to bid it good night; and when they were turning around to sleep they used to say, "God bless the star!"

But while she was still very young, oh, very, very young, the sister drooped, and came to be so weak that she could no longer stand in the window at night; and then the child looked sadly out by himself, and when he saw the star, turned round and said to the patient pale face on the bed, "I see the star!" and then a smile would come upon the face, and a little weak voice used to say, "God bless my brother and the star."

And so the time came—all too soon!— when there was a little grave among the graves not there before; and when there was no pale face on the bed; and when there was no pale face on the star made long rays down toward him, and he saw it through his silent tears.

Now these rays were so bright, and they seemed to make such a shining way they contained to the seemed to make smed a shining way they cannot all the star contained to those who were at first most interested in the matter, but extends to relatives, witnesses and sonelized. In this unhappy manner, funds are commenced that sometimes pass of the graves are commenced that sometimes pass and they seemed to make such a shining way the star of the property manner.

in order to prevent such trespasses, and especially in regard to sheep, but none have succeeded, or only in a 'limited degree. Now we have a new one, and if it is not cruel or painful, or will not greatly discommode the animal operated upon, and is a remedy, we can see no objection to employing it. It is to "clip off the eyelashes of the under lids, with a pair of scissors, and the ability or disposition to jump is as effectually destroyed as Sampson's power was by the loss of his locks. The animal will not attempt a fence again until the eyelashes are grown."

This fact has been promulgated by that distinguished breeder of cattle, Mr. Samuel Thorne, of Dutchess county, N. Y., who states that he tested it upon a very breachy pair of oxen with entire success. He considered a knowledge of the fact of great value to himself, and hopes it will prove so to others.—N. E. Farmer.

And he said "no."

She was turning hopefully away, when the child stretched out his arms and cried, "O my sister, I am here! Take me!"

And then she turned her beaming eyes upon him, and it was night; and the star was shining into the room, making long rays down towards him as he saw it through his tears.

From this hour forth, the child looked out upon the star as on the home he was out upon the star as on the home he was out upon the star as on the home he was out a long to the length.

The smaller pieces are calcined and made into tooth powder. A very important use of bones is to be ground very fine and treated with sulphurio acid, to make superphosphate manure, an admirable fertilizer. Phosphorus is extracted from bones. The fat that is saved in boiling them goes to make soap.

Scraps of paper are gathered out of dust heaps, and sorted. The soiled pieces are made into papier-mache ornaments and dolls' heads. Grease is extracted from woollen rags or ragged garments, and used to nourish the pap. Cochineal siky mohairs, and glossy tweeds emerge from the filaments and greasy pulp to which the rags had been reduced by mighty-toothed cylinders. The entire topographical appearance of the country has been so completely changed that even where the people have lived all their lives, they cannot recognize it, or point out localities with which they were formerly familiar. This part of the island is but sparsely populated, and the land is not in general cultivation.

The loss of life, as far as can be ascertained, is as follows: In the village of Palinka, thirty-three; at Mokuka, thirteen; at Pulalua, four; at Henoh, twenty-seven; at Vanilo, three. This makes a total of eighty persons killed, as reported up to the present time.

There are rumors that the casualities considerably exceed one nundred, but nothing definite has been received. All who lost their lives were natives. Not a white person was killed, or in any way injured.

UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS

AT PAR,

Payable in Gold.

Thirty Million Dollars.

800 and 900 MILES

ISTO.

THE GOVERNMENT GRANTS 12,000 acres of land, and its Bonds to the average amount of $28,000 per mile, to aid in the construction of the line, and authorizes the issue of the First Mortgage Bonds now offered for sale, to the same amount and no more. The Government takes a second lien, and gives to the First Mortgage Bondholders a prior lien for their security, to which a large paid-up capital is added. The Bonds cannot be issued except as each section of twenty miles is accepted by Government commissioners, so that they always represent a real property.

It is universally admitted that on the completion of the Union Pacific Italical is through business.

THE NET EARNINGS for eight months of last it could issue on that length of road for that time, reduced to currency, was only $345,856.

The amount paid by the Government for the transportation of troops, munitions, stores and malls has been, and doubtless will continue to be, much more than the interest on the United States Second Mortgage Bonds. If it is not, the charter provides that aft the road is completed, and until said bonds and interest are paid, at least five per cent of the net earnings of the road shall be applied to said payment.

The Union Pacific Bonds are for $1,000 each, and have compose attached. They have thirty years to run, and hear annual interest, payable on the first days of January and July at the Company's Office, in the city of New York, at the rate of six per cent, in gold. The principal is psyable in gold at maturity. At the present rate of gold, these bonds pay an annual income on their cost of advance.

Parties subscribing will remit the par value of the bonds and the accrued interest in currency at the rate of six per cent per annum, from the date on which the last coupon was paid. Subscriptions will be received in WOBURN by will be in operation during 1868. There seems to be no reasonable doubt that the distance between Omaha and Sacramento will be traversed by rail in

JOHN J. CISCO, Treasurer, N. Y. Sealer's Notice.

It is universally admitted that on the completion of the Union Pacific Rallroad its through business will make it one of the most profitable in the world —but its weap or local business is already several times the interest on its bonds; so that, if not another mile were built, they would be a scenre in-

ty. At the present rate of gold, these bonds pay an annual income on their cost of

NEARLY NINE PER CENT.,

AND IT IS BELIEVED THAT THEY WILL SOON BE AT A PREMIUM.

The Company have but a very limited supply of their Bonds remaining on hand, but any subscriptions accepted to a greater amount than can be filled from Bonds now in the Company's possession, will be supplied from the New Bonds to be issued on that portion of the road completed in the Spring, in the order in which they are received.

The Company reserve the right to advance the price of their bonds to a rate above par at any time, and will not fill any orders or receive any subscriptions on which the money has not been actually paid at the Company's office before the time of such advance.

Sparrow Horton, and in New York at the Company's Office, No. 20, NASSAU STREET, and by JOHN J. CISCO & SON, Bankors, No. 52 Wall Street, and by the Company's advertised agents throughout the United States.

A PAMPHLET AND MAP FOR 1868 has just atry traversed by the Road, the Means for Con-ction, and the Value of the Bonds, which will ent free on application at the Company's offices,

A DISTINGUISHED JURIST WRITES TO A FRIEND AS FOLLOWS:

"I have tried the Peruvian Syrap, and the result fully sustains your preliction. It has made a new man of me, infused into my system new vigor and energy: I am no longer tremulous and debilitatele, and with larger capacity for labor, mental and physical, than at any time during the last five years."

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy from weak, slekly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial. WIFE AND I.

We quarrelled this morning, my wife and I,
We were out of temper, and scarce knew why,
Though the cause was trivial and common;
But to look in our eyes, you'd have sworn that we both
Were a couple of enemies spiteful and wroth—
Not a weddel man and woman.

Wife, like a tragedy queen in a play,
Tossed her sweet little head in as lofty a way
As so little a woman was able;
She clenched her lips with a sneer, and a frown,
While I, being rougher, stamped up and down,
Like a careless groom in a stable. You'd have thought us the bitterest (seeing this Would be rainbow'd to tears by that sunlight, a

Yet the storm was over in less than an hour, And was followed soon by a sunny shower, And that again by embraces; Yet so little the meaning was understood, That we almost felt achieved to be good, And wore a blush on our faces.

Then she, as a woman, much brayer became, tod tried to bear the whole weight of the blame, By her kindness, her self-reproving; Yhen, seeing her humble, and knowing her true, all at once became humble, too, Aud very contrite and loving.

But, seeing I acted an humble part,
She laughed outright with a frolic heart,
A laugh as careless as Cupid;
And the laughter wrangled along my brain,
Till I almost fell in a passion again,
And became quite stubbern and stupid. And this was the time for her arms to twin

Like the arms of a maid around a lover; And, feeling them there with their warmth know, laughed quite a different laugh; and so The storm (as I called it) was over. o then we could talk with the power to please nd though the passing of storms like these Leaves a certain fond facility is said now-a-days in agricultural papers carpenter suddenly clasped his hammer about scientific farmers, fancy farmers, to his breast and fell motionless upon the Skelleger Fairmers, and small farmers; but it is very seldom that one reads anything about poor and negligent farmers.

Now do not imagine that I am going to denounce every farmer as culpable in this respect. By no means; for there are a great many good, substantial, tidy practical farmers who take an honet pride in their vocation, and have everything about their farm and building the practical farmers who take an honet pride in their vocation, and have everything about their farm and building the everything and th other name, when a little economy, judiciously exercised, could have prevented it.

See that your buildings are all kept in good repair, that the fences are in good condition, and that every thing is done well. Don't trust too much to others in the general management of your farm; well. Don't trust too much to others in the general management of your farm; it is always deubtful economy, and always dangerous. In fine, there is no department of a farmer's vocation where economy can not be used to advantage. The force of example, also, should render a farmer exceedingly watchful. Every man has his influence for good or evil; and a farmer ought to be very careful how he sows the seeds of negligence in the minds of his sons, and among his neighbors, for they will be sure to spring up, and bear fruit in after years. A negligent farmer is a curse to himself, and a shame to his profession.—Correspondent Rural American.

She wanted to take absolute power out of the hands of the black man, and give the black woman the right to own her children and the wages of her toil, and the power to protect herself from the injustice of selfish men, black or white. She placed her claim for the suffrage of black women on the broad platform of absolute human right to it. Miss Dickinson then turned to Mr. Phillips. She had painfully seen in paper after paper and heard from person after person that he had abandoned her sex's cause.

Mr. Phillips responded that he wished the woman question to wait awhile. Mrs. Kemp thought that "if there were two vessels going, one for the negroes, and another one, the right one, under the

Mrs. Stanton remarked that "abolitionists had not been true to their ideas.
The only way to secure a safe and lasting econstruction was to secure the suffrage to man and woman alike."

Mr. Phillips is not so valiant in his battles with ladies as with gentlemen; and as he has been accustomed to receive nen, he is evidently unwilling to lose their applause; but he was rather stiff, as is his nature, to have his own way Fred Douglass, is, however the most of a ladies' man, as his remarks show.

He took the platform, as he jokingly aid, to give color to the proceedings, and Dlympia Brown that there was no material difference between the Republican and Democratic parties, pointing out the difference during the war. Here or and that a wholesome, moral and social influence, undisturbed by partisan policity. Olympia Brown that there was no material difference between the Republican difference during the war. Fred—"The difference now is the difference then."

Mrs. Stanton—"Didn't the Republican party do the same as the Democrats in their elections—ignoring both the claims of the black man and of woman?"

Fred—"No, I think not; I think there is a difference."

Susan B. Anthony—"Will you let mask you a question, Mr. Douglass?"

Fred—"I knew I should get it on this question. (Laughter.) THE POPE.—The Pall Mall Gazette late Fore.—The Patt Mail Gazette learns from a correspondent at Rome that the Pope has lately given several general audiences to foreigners, receiving a thousand and fifteen hundred at a time. He has also delivered several discourses, two of which contained political allusions. In the first, he spoke of the evils inflicted on the church by certain rulers, the on the church by certain rulers, the Herods and Pilates of the day, while the on the church by certain rulers, the Herods and Pilates of the day, while the tendency of events was to expand and magnify the Holy See, bringing all men and all countries round the tomb of St. Peter. In the second discourse the Holy Father distressed his audience by his melancholy presentiments, and by reminding them that as David, though attended by a band of faithful and devoted friends, could not be saved from exile and the life of a fugitive, so the affection borne to himself by a few faithful Catholics could not preserve him from the trials which Heaven had still in store for him. This mysterious language was thought to have been inspired by unfavorable communications from foreign governments. It is said that a message from Paris advises the immediate armament of the fortifications of Rome, and authorizes the transport of eighty pieces of French artillery from Civita Vecchia, should the guns in Rome be inadequate for the purpose.

A BEAUTIFUL TURN.—A little girl was directed to open the door for General Washington, as he was leaving a house where he was visiting. Turning to her he said:

"I am sorry, my little dear, to give you so much trouble."

"I wish sir, it was to let you in," she replied.

Many churches out of the limits of the city, are suffering in their devotional services for the want of good music, when a reasonable amount of mency will purchase a fine organ, with which the voices may be supported in full harmony. With a poor instrument, the singing will deteriorate, and with none at all neither will a choir, or congregational singing flourish. Messrs. S. D. & H. W. Smith of Boston, have just introduced new styles of Abrancan Oncass, with upright cases and gill imitation pipes, having remarkable volume of tone, containing the deep manual sub-bass, super octave coupler, tremolo, and knee swell. We take pleasure in calling the attention of churches in need of good instruments, to the American Organs.—Watchman and Reflector.

FAIR PLAY.

A nobleman, resident at a castle in Italy, was about to celebrate his marriage feast. All the elements were propitious except the ocean, which had been so boisterous as to deny the very mecessary appendage of fish. On the very morning of the feast, however, a poor fisherman made his appearance, with a turbot so large, that it seemed to have been created for the occasion- Joy pervaded the castle, and the fisherman was ushered with his prize into the saloon, where the nobleman, in the presence of his visitor, requested him to put what price he thought proper on the fish, and it should be instantly paid him. One hundred lashes, said the fisherman, on my bare back, is the price of my fish, and I will not bate one strand of whipeord on the bargain. The nobleman and his guests were not a little astonished, but our chapman was resolute, and remonstrance was in vain. At length the nobleman exclaimed, well, the fellow is a humorist, and the fish we must have, but lay on lightly, and let the price be paid in our presence. After fitty lashes had been administered, Hold, hold, exclaimed the fisherman, I have a partner in this business, and it is fitting that he should receive his share. What! are there two such madcaps in the world? exclaimed the nobleman; name him, and he shall be sent for instantly. You need not go far for him, said the fisherman, you will find him at your gate in the shape of your own porter, who would not let me in until I promised that he should have the half of whatever I received for my turbot. Oh, oh, said the nobleman, bring him up instantly, he shall receive his stipulated moiety with the strictest justice. This ceremony being finished, he discharged the porter, and amply rewarded the fisherman.

The amount paid by the Government for the transportation of troops, munitions, stores and mails has been, and doubtless will continue to be, much more than the interest on the United States Second Mortgage Bonds. A Horrible Crime in Russian journals concerning the murder of the Gemarine formity at Tamboff. The culprit, a tutor mained Gorski, has confessed his guilt. He had gone, he says, to the residence of M Gemarine on the 1st of March ast to give a lesson to a son, but without any intention of committing any crime ca that day. While he was thus occupied, the father went out. Gorski then determined to take advantage of the opport mity. He had carried a revolver and a life-preserver about him for a whole week. He at once struck his pupil over the head, and the latter fell insensible to the grand. On seeing him fall, Gorski was seized with remorse, and his first movement was to escape, but, fearing to be discovered, he again beat the boy until life was extinct. There were three personal in the house—the mistress, the cook, and a man-servant. He first called to the nother, saying that her son was bleed ig at the nose, and when she entered he room he shot her dead with the pistol he next summoned the man into the di-ing-room, and killed him in the same manner; lastly, he fired twice at the cook, wounding her each time, and, on her attempting to escape, he deprived her of life with blows of the life-preserver. He writed in the kitchen until the house-keeper returned, and, on her arrival, shot at her, but as the pistol did not go off, he killed her by a single blow with a log of wood. As the mechanism of the revolver had become disarranged, he went out to get it repaired, and, on returning met the coach man and nursemaid. He might have killed them both, he said, but his hand refused to obey his will. He then suffered so much from remorse that he went home with the intention of committing aicide. He put the barrel of the pistol to his mouth, but the instinct of life was too strong, and he could not carry out his intention. Gorski admits that his object was to rob Gemarine. He is only 19 years of age, but of a most energe ic character.

An odd fight recently took place in Paris. Three blind men, already merry, ente ed a wine glass eyes, are you soon going to squealing?" The blind men stoppeding, and one of them said: "Who is blackguard who would make ust?" The rough answered, "Put or spectacles, old horse, and you wil' His comrades, delighted with the and greeted with hoarse laughs. The shird men's anger became great. They so a. One of them groped until his hand wa on the lamp on the wall which lighted the room. He extinguished it, and then exclaimed: "Now we are equal. Joseph, tyle the door, so no one goes out." Jo eph placed his stalwart back against the door, and his two companions seized the roughs and beat and knocked their he as against walls, tables, and the floor, kinked them until the terrible uproar braight the master of the shop; he, finding himself unable to push lusty Joseph from the door, went for his neighbors, and at last, when the entrance was effected, the room was found in a state of great confusion. Tables and chairs were turned over one another, bottles broken in a hundred fragments were scattered everywhere, and the roughs, completely cowed and dreadfully beaten, were cruching in corners.

Indian Hostillties.—The Cheyenne

cc.w.d. and dreadfully beaten, were crouching in corners.

INDIAN HOSTILITIES.—The Cheyenne popers publish a long list of outrages and narders committed along the line of the Facific Railroad by parties of those gentle and tender-hearted savages about whom the peace commissioners gave so a feeting a chapter in their report last winter. The long-suffering and muchatoused red men have sent in word that any intend to burn North Platte in a few days; and they have already killed a funchman named Burke, his son and aughter, and burned the ranch, only two miles from that town. Twelve Inciens suddenly attacked twenty-four mentle work on the grade at Boyle's camp, and killed one man and wounded three thers. Another band attacked a woodrain near Plum Creek, on Friday, and idled four of the men. Two men who were with freight wagons, sixty miles from Cheyenne, were killed on Thursday, and other cases of treachery and murter are reported, all tending to illustrate he necessity of new treaties and more liberal allowances of powder to the inoffensive red men.

Details will be made to visit the cemetery at East Woburn and other graves in the vicinity. Members of the Post residing in Winehester are detailed to decorate the graves in that town.

The citizens generally are invited to be present at the cemetery to join in the ceremonies, and all are requested to bring with them such flowers as their inclinations may dictate, and to place them on such graves as they may select.

The children are particularly invited to be present.

Lawyers' Sparring. — Five-and-twenty years ago Luke P. Poland, D. A. Smalley, and Joshua Sawyer led the bar of Lamoille County, Vermont. Sawyer had brought an action for assault and battery, and had drawn a somewhat prolix declaration, so that the case appeared fully as badly on paper as the witnesses for the plaintiff detailed it upon the stand. In his argument Poland told the jury that his brother Sawyer's declaration reminded him of an incident in his own practice:

"Some years since," said Mr. Poland, "I commenced a suit of this character in favor of my old friend Asa Barnard, against the gallant Major Russell D. Hyde, who had inflicted some unjust corporal punishment upon Barnard for the trivial offence of telling him he was a great liar. Barnard asserted, and pretty conclusively proved, that the Major had struck him a blow on the head with his heavy cane. Barnard, finding my astute brother Sawyer retained for the Major, was obliged to come to me to obtain redress for this great wrong and injury. I was young, and entered into my client's case with enthusiasm. I framed a declaration in ten counts, setting forth the beating, bruising, wounding, and evil entreating, in all the various forms, and with all the verbiage and tautological nonsense I could command; and in the last count I did not forget to recite that Barnard's life was greatly despaired of. I read the declaration to my client in a voice full of sympathy—almost as affectingly as my brother Sawyer read this to you, gentlemen; and upon looking at my old friend I noticed the tears were coursing down his furrowed cheeks in rivers, I asked him the cause of his great grief. He replied, with choked and sobbing utterance, that he did not know it was half so bad before!"

As the general impression prevailed, in the case on trial, that the evidence did not quite sustain Sawyer's declaration, the jury, the Court, and all present were convulsed with laughter, and many vhought that Sawyer, though reputed to be a great wit, could not get the laugh off for this t said:

"Gentlemen, you all appeared to be very much delighted when the learned counsel on the other side related an incident of his own practice. I confess I was not amused. My old friend Barnard has told me the story so many times, and in tones which had no affected emotion, I assure you, that I could not laugh with you, gentlemen. The story, as Barnard tells it, has only this difference. He says he wept when Poland read him a very lengthy paper; but that paper was not his declaration, gentlemen, but his bill!"

This still y upset every thing in court largest and best in barnard tells it, has only this directerice. He says he weept when Poladic rad him a very lengthy paper; but that paper was not his declaration, gentlemen, but his bill?"

This sally upset every thing in court, including the supposed imperturbable gravity of Judge Royce, and no doubt largely enhanced plaintiff's damagemence appearing to enjoy the joke better than Poland himself.—Harper's Drawer.

Some of the daily papers are telling a curious love story, and crediting it to the Toledo Commercial. It is, of course, founded on fact. This is the way it runs: A Michigan young man had a dream a few weeks ago, in which he found himself in the town called Fremont, they upselve east of Toledo, when he met a few weeks ago, in which he found himself in the town called Fremont, they upselve east of Toledo, when he met her, took her and lived to see a third generation of the post-office a girl, with the face so indelibly photographed upon his memory. Stepping up to her, he made known the nature of his dream and the object of his visit. She was the made known the nature of his dream and the object of his visit. She was at first somewhat startled by the strange announcement, but soon comprehended the situation. The young fellow seemed in carnest, and, like a sensible girl, she was by no means displeased with his talk and proposal. The parents, being made acquainted with the state of affairs, acceeded to the remarkable proposition, and soon the two were made on. This is a charming story, and if true, the affair may be spoken of as the most remarkable courtship on record.

A new invention promises to wholly revolutionize the business of bridge building, as being the cheapest, most simple and convenient of construction, as it requires no piers, and may be built of such material as an ordinary carpenter or blacksmith can furnish, and may be thrown over ravines or streams in all situations and at all seasons of the year, without regard to the depth or with of span. Its great strength, from the peculiar distribution of its comp

The iron bridge built on the same prin-The iron bridge built on the same principle is entirely free of strain from unequal expansion, being formed entirely of wrought iron, and is built by projection like the wooden bridge, and is very light and cheap, and of great strength. It makes the best railroad bridge known and can be easily duplicated in parts. The architectural beauty of the bridge when complete is unexceptionable.

Down, down like a pale leaf dropping Under an autumn sky, My love dropped into my bosom Quietly, quietly.

There was not a ray of sunshine,
And not a sound in the air,
As she trembled into my bosom—
My love, no longer fair.

All year round in her beauty
She dwelt on the tree-top high;
She danced in the summer breezes,
She laughed to the summer sky.

I lay so low in the grass dews, She sat so high above; She never wist of my longing, She never dreamed of my love.

But when winds laid bare her dwelling, And her heart could find no rest, I called—and she fluttered downward Into my faithful breast.

I know that my love is fading; I know I cannot fold Her fragrance from the frost blight, Her beauty from the mould;

But a little, little longer,
She shall contented lie,
And wither away in the sunshine
Silently, silently.

Come when thou wilt, grim Winter, My year is crowned and blest, If, when my love is dying, She die upon my breast.

E. MARCHANT, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR

IMPEACHMENT .- After all the great fuss about impeachment, Andrew Johnson has been fully acquitted, as most would be. ident, who has mainly acted according to in Virginia in front of the capital. the dictates of an honest conscience, had been declared guilty of "High Crimes and Misdemeanors," simply because members of Congress wished to break down his power and thus render themselves supreme. The present Congress has sins enough to answer for, without making itself odious by such an outrageous act, and we are glad to chronicle the fact that there was found wisdom enough in the Senate to save the country the mortification and disgrace which would ever have attached to them and the nation by carrying through the impeachment business to the bitter end. Congress has, during the most of the trial, seemed to have utterly ignored the fact that the President had rights and duties to perform, and that he was President of the whole country and not of a party. He is answerable to the people for his acts, as all public servants are, but he is answerable only in the way which the Constitution prescribes, and it will not do to overawe the Supreme Court, and twist and override the laws of the land to cripple the President for doing, not the be hests of a party, but the very acts which have always heretofore been sanctioned by all parties and all good men in the country. In the language of a leading Republican paper, the New York Post, edited by that well-known friend of freedom and able patriot, William C. Bryant:-"Congress may not like his (John son's) individual peculiarities or his political principles, but he is none the less as much a part of the government as Congress itself; and what is more, he represents nearly as large a part of popular opinion as Congress does. It may be distasteful to admit it, but it is true, that the political sentiments of the President have a large following-not among the rebels only, as the cry has it, but among the loyal people of the North. He is supported in most of his positions by the great opposition, or democratic party, and that support is extending and growing rapidly under the fostering care of Congress. Thousands who have no liking for the President, personally or politically, who think that he has managed his opportunities with an utter want of tact and skill, and to the detriment of the public interests, are yet unprepared to see the established order of the Constitution assailed in his person, would be; that his confidence in the people is undiminished, and that he expects history to give him credit for high patthe discharge of his difficult duties at a time of great excitement.

Among the first to call on the President were Mr. Stanbery, Judge Nelson and Colonel Cooper, and after the adjournment of Congress a large number of Senators and Representatives called upon him. All were received by Mr. Johnson with a dignified though cordial greeting. Not a word of exultation or an expression of triumph escaped him.

The report that certain Senators had dined with Chief-Justice Chase, and dined with Chief with him about the verdict.

Senator Ross has prepared a speech, will deliver the same to the Senate on the expedition. the first opportunity that offers.

The Nation for this week says: "It is to mention had we learned it from him.

Dr. Walcot, better known as Peter Pindar, called one day upon the publisher of his works, by way of inquiring into the literary and other news of the day. After some chat, the doctor was asked to take a glass of wine with the seller of his wit and poetry. The doctor consented to accept of a little negus, when instantly was presented to him a cocoanut goblet, with the face of a man carved on it. "Eh! eh!" says the doctor, "what have we here?"—"A man's skull," replied the bookseller, "a poet's for what I know."—"Nothing more likely," rejoined the doctor, "for it is universally know that all you booksellers drink your wine from our skulls."

Correspondence of the Journal WASHINGTON, D. C., May 25th, 1868.

Dear Editor:—I enclose Janvier's expressive poem "Our Heroes," which seems particularly appropriate to be used on the occasion of decorating with flowers, the graves of our fallen heroes. As recommended by the Grand Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, the 30th inst. will be generally observed in that manner in this District. This poem will be used here, and, it is so apt, that I wish it might become identified with the occasion everywhere. At Arlington there are 15,000 Union graves; at the Soldiers' Home, 5,000; and at the Seventh Street Battle Ground, 60. The American Flag will be planted on each grave, and Lincoln's Gettysburg dedicatory address sensible people always supposed he will be read. Arrangements have also It would have been a dark been made to decorate the graves of those day, indeed, for our country, if the Pres- who died when the army was encamped

Yours, truly, J. F. GLEASON.

OUR HEROES. BY FRANCIS DE HAES JANVIER.

Cheers! Cheers, for our heroes!
Not those who wear stars;
Not those who wear eagles,
And leaflets and bars;

And leanets and bars;
We know they are gallant,
And honor them, too,
For bravely maintaining
The Red, White, and Blue! But, cheers for our soldiers, Rough, wrinkled, and brown;

Rough, wrinkled, and brown
The men who MAKE heroes,
And ask no renown:—
Unselfish, untiring,
Intropid, and true;
The bulwark surrounding
The Red, White, and Blue!

Our patriot soldiers!
When Treason arose,
And Freedom's own children
Assailed her as foes;
When Anarchy threatened,
And Order withdrew,
They railied to rescue
The Red, White, and Blue!

Upholding our banner,
On many a field,
The doom of the traitor
They valiantly sealed;
And, worn with the conflict,
Found vigor anew,
Where Victory greeted
The Red, White, and Blue!

Yet, loved ones have fallen—
And still, where they sleep,
A sorrowing Nation
Shall silently weep;
And Spring's fairest flowers,
In gratitude, strew,
O'er those who have cherished
The Red, White, and Blue!

But, glory immortal Is waiting them now; And chaplets unfading Shall glind every brow, When, called by the trumpet, At Time's great review, They stand, who defended The Red, White, and Blue?

A company at Salem, Mass., manufacture 1,000,000 yards of sheetings and jeans each month, giving labor to 1250 hands. They are now breaking ground to erect a brick mill of three stories, 194 by 90 feet, increasing their capacity 10,000 spindles and 250 operatives, making in all 80,000 spindles and 1500 hands.

The entire approximative cost of the expedition, including the transport Secretary Stanton has felt compelled, home of the troops and munitions of by the recent action of the Senate, to war, is estimated thus:—Preliminary give up the keys of the War Department to the control of President Johnson.

A Trenton paper tells a story of a brave woman: "On Monday night the The Nation for this week says: "It is a matter within our own knowledge that Mr. Evarts lost more than thrice the annual income of any ordinary lawyer by attending the impeachment proceedings; in other words, that he declined business vastly more remunerative, for the sake of conducting Mr. Johnson's defence; and moreover, that Mr. Evarts has received no fee whatever for conducting it. This is a fact which Mr. Evarts would not condescend to state himself, and one which we should not be at liberty to mention had we learned it from him." stead of being overawed by the threat, the courageous woman screamed out at the top of her voice, and the man at once took to his heels and fled."

THE HOUSEHOLD LAMP.

When suns decline, and crickets sing.
And wandering mists from seaward roam,
When nights no beavenly beacons bring.
Then brightest shines the star of home!

When the brown brooks, with music low, Watch summers die and autumns come When stately golden rods must bow, What cheer is in that light of home!

When winter strips the shuddering trees, And chills the wavelet's wanton foam, When in the world's cold grasp we freeze, How blest is then that star of home!

PRINTERS' DEVILS.—A great many an unsound or an inferior animal. The horse that can perform twice as much service as another is worth more than double, because it saves your time and labor. The active horse for social or commercial intercourse, for road service, is what the steam engine is to water. It supersedes all other common carriers for active trade and commerce. Horses in the vigor of health, that have engraved their wonderful powers in enduring records upon the tablets of the race-course, would not be likely to entail hereditary weakness upon their colts. The weak stale off. The strong only can stand the severe ordeal of the training process. Their record is an implied guarantee of soundness, and a positive test of speed and endurance. They will as far surpass their inheritance in the stud as they have excelled it upon the turf. This is the sequence of great speed. The most distinguished horses have left the most eminent and gifted colts.

A SONG WITHOUT MUSIC.

A SONG WITHOUT MUSIC
BY PRUDY.
O Robin, singing in the tree,
A song so full of gladness!
Yeur music fills my heart with glee,
And leaves no place for sadness.
Beneath the orchard trees I lie
And hear the bees go droning by.
My hearts is glad, I know not why,
This lightsome summer weather.
O Robin, singing in the tree,
When fades that daylight slowly,
Your vesper hymn floats down to me,
Through twilight shadows holy.
The skies have caught a beauty new,
A softer light has touched their blue,
And tender stars are trembling through,
To watch while earth is sleeping.
O Robin sleep! till golden rays

To waten white earth is steeping.

O Robin sleep! till golden rays
Shall light thy radiant morrow.
I sleep to dream of sunny days,
Without a fear of sorrow.
For, while I sleep, my Father wakes,
His hand my sure protection makes,
His tender merey ne'er forsakes,
Through joy and grief unfailing.

HORTON'S WOBURN BOOKSTORE Posters printed at this Office.

On Main street, Woburn, long ago A sign was seen, "S. H. & Co." They dealt in Sugars, Spices, Teas, Also in Butter and in Cheese. They dealt their cards all very fair, The "Ace and Bowers" turned up with

But "H" declared, as will be shown, That he should rather "play alone;" He took his cards, all fresh and new, And spread them out to public view His "counters" were all new at start, One was a "diamond," t'other "Hart; He soon began to show his "hand," His goods were quick in great demand. The printer made a great display, Which helped his business day by day; He offers goods at such low rates As can't be beat in all the States. He gives good weight and measure too Which every dealer ought to do,

His "Oolong" Teas-they can't be beat The flavor is so rich and sweet; The "Japans" also, far excel Most of the Teas that others sell;

While Ningyong, Hyson, young and old, All of choice chops, by him are sold.

Such Coffees, too, as may be found At this new store, by bag or pound, You'd scarce believe, if we should tell you How very low friend "H" will sell you

Either Mocha, Java or Domingo, And raw, or burnt and ground by "jingo."

His Sugars are of various kinds, Both in the crude and the refined; From Porto Rico and Havana, Muscavado, Louisana. All which at such low price he offers,

He has a stock of fine Cigars, Just right for smoking in the cars; We know they're good, for we have tried

As quickly ought to fill his coffers.

And care a fig for none beside them. He has the standard and the fancy brands Both from this and foreign lands.

Or, if Tobacco you prefer,
And use a "Meerschaum," my dear sir,
You'll find at Hart's a choice supply Of "Navy," "Fine-Cut," pressed and dry; The "Century" and "Solace," too, And choicest brand of "Honey-dew."

Of Flour he keeps a full supply, Of kinds the "Elite" always buy; And that supplied by the "Golden State" Is said by all to be "first-rate." The Vermont farmers, bound to please, Send him their best Butter and Cheese; These goods he offers to you all, While he invites a friendly call. At his new store 'neath Lyceum Hall.

Potatoes from the Eastern States. Oranges, Lemons, Figs and Dates, Currants and Raisins, fresh and nice, All offered at the lowest price. Likewise of spice a full supply, All fresh and pure as you can buy, With Chocolate, Shells and Cocoa, And Tapioca white as snow.

All our $2 Kids marked down to $1.75 In fact, 'twould take too long to tell One half the goods he has to sell; Then hurry up and make a call At this new store at "Lyceum Hall." We cannot warrant you "a drink," But yet (don't mention it) we think He'll show you "Porter" that is tall; Now won't you trade at "Lyceum Hall," Your various wants can be supplied, No hasty call will be denied, The goods delivered with dispatch, As soon as clerks your orders eatch; Early and late they'll ask you in,

> Or "greenbacks" he'll receive in pay, As long as Congress keeps Q. K. But should it get into a muss, Repudiate or something worse, He'd then prefer the shining gold, As that is better far to "hold."

And give full value for your "tin,"

You need not wait to get that ore, But come at once to the Grocery Ste Of H. T. HART, and you'll be told He never will be undersold.

WINCHESTER .- In February last an incendiary fire was set in the large factory of Joseph Shattuck, Esq., of Winchester, its timely discovery saving the building from destruction. On the 17th of April Mr. Shattuck's lumber storehouse was destroyed by fire, and on the 3d of May, another large storehouse of Mr. Shat-tuck's, used for machinery, was also burned-both incendiary acts-and on the loth of May last, the new moccupied dwelling-house of the same gentleman was fired but not destroyed. About the time of the commission of the last acts, the shops of G. H. Smith and H. K. Stanton were broken into in the night time by several persons, one of whom, John Murphy, was detected and arrested on the premises of Mr. Stanton, the others effecting their escape, and until recently unknown. Deputy Constable, Jones, Wade and Tidd, together with Mr. Frank Johnson, Constable of Winchester, have persistently followed every fact and circumstance, and within the past few days have had the satisfaction of arresting all of the supposed gang—Chas. P. Sherman, Edward Stanton and Patrick Cain, who have been committed to jail to answer these charges, in default of bail in $4000. The evidence of the guilt of these parties is quite conclusive, Cain, the younger of the gang, being held as a witness.

EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

HISTORY OF WOBURN.—There are many things in this work which will be read with interest. It is written in an able and scholarly manner, and in this respect reflects credit upon its author. As a history of the town, however, it is by no means complete. Great space is given to some matters, while other, which should have been "made of record," are passed over in entire silence. Interiors: or Workstrace. A) the supplemental production of the complete of th on Sabbath morning last, Gen. Abijah Thompson departed this life, at the advanced age of seventy-five. He was for a long series of years closely identified with the business interests of the town, having been one-of the earliest and perhaps largest leather manufacturers in the econtry. He entered the business in 1814, and continued it successfully up to the period of his decease. Gen. Thompson, during his life, contributed largely to be heredout, deleational, and church efficient, in 1853, to the time of its change to a National Bank, in 1865, and continued in that capacity under the new organization, to the time of his death. He was also President of the Woburn Bank from the time of its commendations we may state that it is the cheapest as well as the best preparation for the various uses for which it is count of his many pressing engagements in other directions. A great worker inhis day, he rapidly accumulated a handsome property, which placed him in a pecuniary view, above want.

He was a man of upright life, a valuable and public-spirited citizen, and adorned the profession of a christian, having for many years been a leading member of the First Congregational (Church of Waburn His independent) and continued the profession of a christian, having for many years been a leading member of the First Congregational (Church of Waburn His independent).

UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD

Are now finished and in operation. Sixty miles of track have been laid this spring, and the work along the whole line between the Atlantic and Pacific States is being pushed forward more rapidly than ever before. More than twenty thousand men are employed, and it is not impossible that the entire track from Omaha to Sacramento will be finished in 1860 instead of 1870. The means provided are am-ple, and all that energy, men and money can do to secure the completion of this

n Main street, Woburn, long ago A sign was seen, "S. H. & Co." They dealt in Sugars, Spices, Teas, Also in Butter and in Cheese. They dealt their cards all very fair. The "Ace and Bowers" turned up with

But "H" declared, as will be shown, That he should rather "play alone;" He took his cards, all fresh and new, And spread them out to public view; His "counters" were all new at start, One was a "diamond," t'other "Hart He soon began to show his "hand," His goods were quick in great demand. The printer made a great display, Which helped his business day by day: He offers goods at such low rates As can't be beat in all the States. He gives good weight and measure too.

His "Oolong" Teas-they can't be beat, The flavor is so rich and sweet;

Most of the Teas that others sell;

While Ningyong, Hyson, young and old,

All of choice chops, by him are sold.

The 'Japans' also, far excel

Which every dealer ought to do.

Such Coffees, too, as may be found At this new store, by bag or pound, You'd scarce believe, if we should tell you How very low friend "H" will sell you

And raw, or burnt and ground by "jingo."*

His Sugars are of various kinds Both in the crude and the refined;

From Porto Rico and Mavana,

Either Mocha, Java or Domingo,

Muscavado, Louisana. As quickly ought to fill his coffers.

He has a stock of fine Cigars, Just right for smoking in the cars; We know they're good, for we have tried

And care a flg for none beside them. FREEMAN BAKER, He has the standard and the fancy brands Both from this and foreign lands.

> Or, if Tobacco you prefer,
> And use a "Meerschaum," my dear sir,
> You'll find at Hart's a choice supply Of "Navy," "Fine-Cut," pressed and

The "Century" and "Solace," too. And choicest brand of "Honey-dew."

Of Flour he keeps a full supply, Of kinds the "Elite" always buy; And that supplied by the "Golden State Is said by all to be "first-rate."

The Vermont farmers, bound to please Send him their best Butter and Cheese

Potatoes from the Eastern States. Oranges, Lemons, Figs and Dates, Currants and Raisins, fresh and nice, All offered at the lowest price. Likewise of spice a full supply,
All fresh and pure as you can buy, With Chocolate, Shells and Cocoa,

And Tapioca white as snow.

In fact, 'twould take too long to tell One half the goods he has to sell; Then hurry up and make a call At this new store at "Lyecum Hall. We cannot warrant you "a drink, But yet (don't mention it) we think Now won't you trade at "Lyceum Hall. Your various wants can be supplied, No hasty call will be denied The goods delivered with dispatch, As soon as clerks your orders catch; Early and late they'll ask you in, And give full value for your "tin," Or "greenbacks" he'll receive in pay, As long as Congress keeps O. K. But should it get into a muss, Repudiate or something worse, He'd then prefer the shining gold, As that is better far to "hold,"

You need not wait to get that ore. But come at once to the Grocery Store Of H. T. HART, and you'll be told He never will be undersold.

Are men whose hands are brown with toil,
Who, backed by no ancestral grayes,
I lew down the woods and till the soil;
And win thereby a prouder fame
Than follows king's or warrior's name.
The working men, what e'er their task—

UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD

Are now finished and in operation. Sixty miles of track have been laid this spring, and the work along the whole line between the Atlantic and Pacific States is being pushed forward more rapidly than ever beford. More than twenty thousand men are employed, and it is not impossible that the entire track from Omaha to Sacramento will be finished in 1869 instead of 1870. The means provided are ample, and all that energy, men and money can do to secure the completion of this and all necessary timber and other material found along the line of its operations. II .- A Government Grant of 12,800 acres land to the mile, taken in alternate section each side of its road. This is an absolute tion, and will be a source of large revenue.

III .- A Government Grant of United State I.—A Government Grant of United States
Thirty-year Bonds, amounting to from $16,000
to $48,000 per mile, according to the dimenties to be surmounted on the various sections to be built. The Government takes a second mortgage as security, and it is expected that not only the interest, but the principal amount may be paid in services rendered by the Company in transporting troops, mails, &c. The interest is now much more than paid in this way, besides securing a great saving in time and money to the Government.

Government.

IV.—A Government Grant of the right to issue its own FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS, to aid in building the road, to the same amount as the U. S. Bonds, issued for the same purpose, and no more. THE GOVERNMENT PERMITS the Trustees for the First Mortgage Bondholders to deliver the Bonds to the Company only as the road is completed, and after it has been examined by United States Commissioners and pronounced to be in all respects a first-class Bailroad, laid with a heavy Trail, and completely supplied with depots, stations, turnouts, carshops, locomotives, cars, &c.

Are Secure beyond any Contingency.

The Company have abundant means in their treasury, and make no appeal to the public to purchase their Bonds, as the daily subscriptions are entirely satisfactory; but they submit that, for entire security and liberal returns, there is certainly no better investment in the market.

The Union Pacific Bonds are for $1,000 each, and have compons attached. They have thirty years to run, and bear annual interest, payable on the first days of January and July at the Company's Office, in the city of New York, at the rate of six per cent, in gold. The principal is payable in gold at maturity. At the present rate of gold, these bends pay an annual income on their cost of Nex Interview That THEY WILL SOON BE AT A PREMIUM.

The Company reserve the right to advance the price of their bonds to a rate above par at any time, and will not fill any orders or receive any subscriptions on which 'the money has not been actually paid at the Company's office before the time of such advance.

ery, came to the cottage with a message from his mistress requesting the old couple to go up to the mansion.

The looks of discontent vanished for once, as the old folks were delighted with such a mark of distinction from one so very rich.

On arriving at the mansion, the lady received them most kindly, and thus addressed them:

"I have set apart two rooms in my house, and so long as you attend to my wishes, you will be allowed to remain here, and have tverything needful for your comfort. But if yon disobey any of my rules you will be immediately turned out and sent back to your mad cottage."

"Thank you! thank you kindly, madam," responded the old man.

"Never fear our doing anything against your wishes, ma'am," added the old woman.

"Very well," said the hady; "then you will find a home here for life."

Everything necessary for their comfort was provided, and all went on well for some time. There was one thing that somehow puzzled them.

For several days there was placed on the dinner table a covered dish, which they were desired not to touch.

"My lady desires me to say that every dish table a covered user, where to touch.

"My lady desires me to say that every dish is at your service, except that one," said the servant.

On such a day, having nearly finished their hearty repast, the curiosity of the old woman was greatly excited as to the forbidden dish, and she said to her husband.

man, as she started back and upset the dish cover on the floor.

Out jumped a mouse!

The uproar roused the lady of the house, who, suspecting what was the matter, was quickly at the door.

"What! is this the return you make for my kindness? You, who were so ready to blame Adam and Eve for eating the forbitden fruit, could not you obey my trifling request? You have now forfeited the privileges I conferred upon you, and you must therefore leave my house immediately, and return to your mud cottage. Never, in future, blame Adam and Eve again for what you evidently would have done had you been in their place."

"Why, yes, she might as well have done handsomely," rejoined the hasband.
"There can be no harm in looking," continued the old woman; "the lady will never be any wiser for that."

The old man was silent, and silence serves to give consent. He was almost as curious as his wife about the strange dish. The temptation was strong, and the longer it was parlied about, the more irresistible it became.

"She'll never know we have looked," replied the old woman, as she gently took hold of the cover, and very cantiously raised it on one side, and there, stooped down to peep under.

RARE BARGAINS IN CLOTHING FOR THIRTY DAYS!—Owing to the backwardness of the season the demand for imited, and Geo. H. RICHARDS, the popular Clothier at 23 and 25 Dcck Square, Boston, still finds on his counters a large proportion of the immense stock of MEN's and BOYS' CLOTHING manufactured in the expectation of a heavy Spring trade, in consequence of which he has concluded to clear it out at a SACRIFICE and for thirty days will offer it at the largest to be found in any retail store in Boston, and embraces Matched Business Suits made from all desirable mixtures of English, Scotch and American Cassimeres, as well as a large asortment of Dress Suits (equal to custom work) made from Black, Brown, and Blue Tricot. As this affords an opportunity for obtaining bargains in Clothing that will not again occur, we advise all to bear it in mind and give "Richards' Clothing House," 23 and 25 Dock Square, Boston, an immediate call.

The invention of the Game of Chess is said to have originated with a learned Brahmin whose wisdom made him a deserved favorite minister of an opulent eastern king. In connection therewith is a story that may serve as a lesson to some of our young readers; teaching them not to make promises without well calculating their ability to fulfill them. This king, so runs the story, when he understood all the beauty of the game which he had lately learned, was so delighted that he told his minister to ask him for anything in his power to bestow and it should be granted. The minister not being avaricious and desiring moreover to show his soveriegn the danger of making rash promises, told him that if he would give him one grain of wheat for the first square of the chess-board, and double the number for each other square in succession, till all were counted there being sixty-four in all, it would content him. The monarch expressed his surprise at the apparent trilling nature of the request, and told the Brahmin to ask for something more valuable, and more worthy of so rich a prince to bestow, and so wise a minister to receive. But the minister replied that the king should first, well test the possibility of granting the first requester he ventured to promise a second. On this the king gave orders to his store keeper to deliver the grain according to his promise. But lot they found it impossible to comply, for all the wheat in his kingdom, although the harvest had been bountiful, was not sufficient to complete the tale.

- III -A Government Grant of United State II.—A Government Grant of United States
  Thirty-year Bonds, amounting to from $16,000 to $48,000 per mile, according to the difficulties
  to be surmounted on the various sections to be built. The Government takes a second nortgage as security, and it is expected that not only the interest, but the principal amount may be paid in services rendered by the Company in transporting troops, mails, &c. The interest is now much more than paid in this way, besides
  securing a great saving in time and money to the Government.
- IV .- A Government Grant of the right 7.—A Government Grant of the right to issue its own FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS, to aid in building the road, to the same amount as the U.S. Bonds, issued for the same purpose, and no more. THE GOVERNMENT PERMITS the Trustees for the First Mortgage Bondholders to deliver the Bonds to the Company only as the road is completed, and after it has been examined by United States Commissioners and pronounced to be in all respects a first-class Railroad, laid with a heavy T rail, and completely supplied with depots, stations, turnouts, carshops, locomotives, cars, &c.
  —A Capital Stock Subscription from the stockholders, of which over Eight Million Do lars have been paid in upon the work alread done, and which will be increased as the want must be sold immeof the Company require.

VI.—Net Cash Earnings on its Way Busines that already amounts to More THAN THE IN-TEREST on the First Mortgage Bonds. These earnings are no indication of the vast through traffle that must follow the opening of the line to the Pacific, but they certainly prove that

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS

Are Secure beyond any Contingency.

The Union Pacific Bonds run thirty years, are $1,000 each, and have coupons attached. They bear annual interest, payable on the first days of January and July at the Company's Office, in the city of New York, at the rate of six per cent. In gold. The principal is payable in gold at maturity. The price is 102, and at the present rate of gold, they pay a liberal income on their cost.

The Company believe that these Bonds, at the present rate, are the cheapest security in the markee, and reserve the right to advance the price at any time.

e seasons weave their ancient dance, The restless ocean ebbs and flows, e world rolls on through day and dark, Regardless of our joys or wees! Still up the breezy western slopes
The reaper girls, like apples brown,
Bend singing to their gleeful toil,
And sweep the golden harvest down:

Still, where the slanting sunlight gilds
The boles of cedar and of pine,
Chants the lone blackbird from the brake
With melancholy voice divine:

With metaneous Still all about the mossy tracks
Hums at his drag the woodward bee;
Still fitfully the corn-crake's note
Comes to me from the upland lea:

Still round the forest bower she loved.
The woodbine trails its rich festoons.
The slumbrous poppies burst and fall.
Beneath the silent autumn moons.

Still round her lattice, perched aloof, In sunny shade of thatched eaves, The jasmine clings, with yearning pale And withers in its shroup of leaves:

Still round the old familiar porch
Her cherished roses blush and seer,
And fill the sunny air with balm,
And strew their petals year by year.

Nor here within, one touch of change!
The footstool—the embroidered chairThe books—the arras on the wall—
The harp—the music—all are there.

No touch of change! I close my eyes— It cannot be she comes no more! I hear the rustling of her dress; I hear her footstep on the floor;

I feel her breath upon my brow;
I feel her kiss upon my cheek:—
Down, phantoms of the buried past!
Down, or my heavy heart must break.

Down, or my heavy heart must break.

DETRACTORS and backbiters are the very vermin of society. Pity that we have not some moral magnetic powder to exterminate the creatures, swelling with their envious, spiteful venom, who having no force for anything good or great in themselves, seek by insinuation, or a roll of the eyes, or a shrug of the shoulders, to diminish the fame of a neighbor! What is there so vile as the sneaking slendere! The man who cannot advance excepting by tearing down the reputation of his fellow man, should be shut out from all respectable association.
